Lancashire Biodiversity Partnership would like to invite you to an event examining how urban wildflower meadows can be used to great effect across the urban landscape.

The morning event will explore the potential and practicalities of meadows within greenspace management, not only drawing on the benefits for wildlife and people, but also how this can offer potential savings for local authority budgets.

The keynote presentation will be delivered by:

Chris Jones (Telford and Wrekin Council),

Chris will focus on the long-term work in the borough with meadows and sown annuals, the benefits and practicalities of the work, together with future plans against a background of public sector cutbacks.

The event will allow plenty of time for your questions to be answered, as well as discussing how meadows can be implemented and taken forward as part of wider greenspace management in Lancashire.
